Tobacco Growers Will Pool Crop, "BUCKING" MARKET

FARMERS SAY THEY WILL LET CROP ROT AT PRESENT PRICES.

WILL NEED CREDIT

For Putting Through Biggest Co-Operative Pool in Wisconsin.

Tobacco growers in Rock county will buck the speculative market through cooperative pooling and raising of the 1920 crop. Credit and financial aid is the only obstacle confronting the farmers who decided on the pool during a meeting held in the West Side L. O. O. F. hall, Saturday afternoon.

There were more than 300 growers present, representing fully 1,500 acres of tobacco. Growers emphatically declared they would let the crop "rot in the sheds" before they would sell at prices now being offered by the local buyers.

Name Committee.

C. B. Myers, president of the association formed for raising the 1921 crop, will appoint two committees. One will be for investigating the actual cost of putting the crop through the warehouse, the other committee to seek aid from the banks in obtaining necessary credit. The full consensus of opinion among the growers Saturday was for the big county pool if the banks would enable the growers to obtain a percentage of cash when the crop is delivered to the cooperative warehouse.

Meeting Next Saturday.

The two committees will report at a meeting to be held at 1:30 o'clock next Saturday afternoon. Final action toward the big county pool will be taken at this meeting. It is estimated that more than 2,000,000 pounds raised in this county will be needed for one of the largest pools ever attempted in the tobacco market.

A resolution was passed unanimously that the growers present "let the crop rot" in the sheds. The only drawback apparent was (Continued on Page 4.)

Judge's Fate Rests With Girl

Miss Mary E. Neely, photographed while testifying on the stand.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Cleveland, Feb. 7.—Judge Wm. G. McGannon, chief justice of the municipal court of this city, went on trial for the second time today on the charge of second degree murder for the alleged killing of H. C. Kray, a gangster, on the night of May 1st. The first trial resulted in a disagreement after the jury had been out 48 hours. Counsel for McGannon said seven new witnesses would testify the judge was not at the scene of the shooting.

Fate Hangs on Girl.

His fate rests, it is believed, on whether his attorney and defense witness can break down or discredit the testimony of Miss Mary E. Neely. She testified early in the trial that she stood a block away from where Harold Kray was shot shortly after midnight the night of May 1st and saw Kray shot. She testified that she saw something shiny in McGannon's hand, heard a shot fired and saw Kray fall.

McGannon asserts he was not with Kray and another man, John Joyce, when the shooting occurred. McGannon says he left the machine in which Joyce and Kray were riding, a few blocks before it reached the scene of the shooting. Miss Neely testified that she had been friendly with McGannon for years.

Miss Neely also told on the stand that after the shooting McGannon offered her "five nice new one hundred dollar bills." If she would change her story of the shooting and say he was not at the scene, McGannon's attorneys claim that her story of the affair was "framed."

Had Been Drinking.

Joyce, Kray and McGannon met earlier on the night of the murder and Joyce and others testified, had been drinking. McGannon says he took only "a mouthful of brandy."

After spending some time in a saloon the three men started toward the center of the city in McGannon's auto. McGannon says that he left the two men five blocks from the scene of the shooting to take a street car home. At the trial of Joyce on the same charge—first degree murder—witnesses testified that Joyce, who was armed with a revolver, was the man who shot Kray and that he was leaving against a pole when Kray was killed. Witnesses testified to seeing a "large man," of middle age, wearing a dark suit, get into the spot after Kray fell.

Girl Friend of Judge.

Miss Neely testified that she had seen McGannon often during the past year or so. She testified that in recent years she had seen him less frequently. She says that before appearing before the grand jury which indicted him she offered to take the blame for the shooting, but that he refused to allow her to do so.

The trial is one of the hardest fought in the history of the criminal courts in Cleveland. One of the odd bits of testimony at the trial was that of Patrolman Brown, who stated that while he was assigned to aid Const. Francis E. Brown for the state conferred with Attorney William Boyd, one of McGannon's counsel.

Joyce was acquitted when tried for Kray's death.

CRIME CONFESSED

Nonchalant Murderer Regrets Mrs. Daly Was Not Among Victims.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Dubuque, Ia., Feb. 7.—Armed with a heavy bar, G. D. Larue, alias John R. Braywood, claiming to be a clerk employed in Chicago, crushed in the wall of Matt Daly, former Dubuque county supervisor and prominent county democratic politician, killing him instantly, as his home here yesterday, and inflicted serious injuries on two members of the Daly family.

Mr. Daly's wife and a niece, Constance Laher, suffered many injuries from blows inflicted by the bar in Braywood's hands. It is feared they will die.

The murderer was arrested at the Daly home soon after the crime and, according to police, he has confessed. The attack according to the confession, was prompted by a desire to kill a daughter-in-law of the Dalys, Mrs. Edna Daly, a widow. Braywood received notice from her she would have nothing further to do with him and went to the family home here bent on revenge.

Braywood was captured without a struggle while he was engaged in a search of the house.

He expressed regret that Mrs. Edna Daly was not among his victims. He said that he had been employed by her for several years and that he had been in love with her. He said that he had been in love with her for several years and that he had been in love with her for several years.

His nonchalance and seeming unconcern over the crime are astounding the authorities. According to the confession he said he entered the house and saw a heavy bar.

Then he was seen by Miss Laher, whom he attacked. Her screams brought Mr. and Mrs. Daly. A swing of the heavy bar crushed in Mr. Daly's skull as he came toward the intruder. Another swing felled Mrs. Daly. Braywood told police Edna Daly was his wife and that she married him at Crown Point, Ind., last November. She emphatically denies this.

Lawrence Body Exhumed

Mrs. Richard S. Lawrence, left, and the late Louise Vale, her daughter by her first husband.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Madison, Feb. 7.—The body of Richard S. Lawrence, who was supposedly killed by a train three years ago, will be exhumed here for the fourth time at 4 o'clock this afternoon to determine whether or not he met death in another manner.

Death took place nearly three years ago. At the time of his death a famous "Orange" diamond, valued at $100,000, disappeared. A few minutes before his death, Louise Vale, his step-daughter, a motion picture actress, was made one of his chief heirs in a will which he had drawn that afternoon. Miss Vale later died of influenza. The body of a man found mangled on the railway tracks at Madison was buried as that of Lawrence, but later when the grave was opened it was found that another body had been substituted. This latter body was identified as Lawrence and it was declared that his death was caused by a blow on the head.

Seek Endorsement of Voters for Work Done; Klein May Run Again

Mayor T. E. Welsh today formally announced his candidacy for reelection at the regular April election, with the following statement:

"Two years ago when I was asked what my policy would be, I replied that RESULTS were what counted with me. I am still of the same opinion."

"Yielding to the solicitation of citizens who feel that I have met every requirement of the office of mayor, and to set at rest any further uncertainty in the matter, I have decided to again go before the people of Janesville as a candidate for mayor at the April election."

"I am asking the support of every voter who has the future welfare of Janesville at heart."

Although it has been hinted for several weeks that Mr. Welsh would again throw his hat in the ring, no confirmation could be secured from him until today. He is first in the field.

"That's good," said Henry C. Klein, ex-fire chief, today when informed of Mayor Welsh's announcement. "I'll know by the latter part of this week whether or not I will be a candidate to run against him. It is safe to say there will be four or five candidates for mayor."

Mayor Welsh, who was fourth ward alderman in 1918-19, defeated Mr. Klein in the spring election of 1919 by a few more than 100 votes.

Home of Archbishop and American Firm Are Wrecked.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Mexico City, Feb. 7.—Police authorities and government agents were today collecting evidence which might lead to the arrest of men who bombed the residence of the archbishop of Mexico and the building occupied by Juergens and company, an American jewelry concern, here yesterday morning. Four men are under arrest but it is known several others were in the building.

The residence of the archbishop was badly damaged but the Juergens building was virtually destroyed. The entire street frontage was wrecked and windows of houses across the street were blown in. The upper story of the factory was occupied by families of the owners, but no one was injured.

Radical activity has been increasing in Mexico City recently and newspapers say two communist congresses will be held this month, one in Mexico City and the other in Tampico.

How the Sinn Fein would accept the partition act, even with a grant to the control of finances, amnesties and other concessions is not certain. Representatives of the Sinn Fein have refused to treat the reported scheme seriously, saying that until some concrete, bona fide proposals had actually been made they would not waste their time in speculation.

Prominent nationalists said they had no doubt that a concession of fiscal autonomy would go far toward satisfying the Irish people's desire for independence, and it offered in a generous spirit, would greatly weaken the position of the Sinn Fein. The republican parliament should reject it.

CHOP OUT BRICKS AND ESCAPE FROM COUNTY JAIL HERE

CAPTURED AT JUNEAU AFTER ALL NIGHT RIDE IN STOLEN CAR.

WORKED ALL DAY

Crude Implements Used to Hew 7-inch Hole Barely Large Enough to Squirm Through.

Escaping from the Rock county jail after hewing their way through two feet of bricks and mortar to wiggle through a seven-inch space, Joseph Anderson and Perry Hull, both 17, were captured in Juneau, Wis., after a sensational jail delivery and an attempted escape in a stolen automobile. The jail breakers were caught in Juneau at seven o'clock this morning about 11 hours after they had safely made their escape from the jail here.

The two youths stole a new Ford touring car owned by W. B. Davis, 1102 South Vista avenue, about eight o'clock last night. In this car they made their getaway shortly after breaking through the bars at the county jail.

Rivals Eddie Ray Case.

The jail delivery was discovered this morning. In daring and cleverness, it rivaled the escape of Eddie Ray, famous eggman, who "broke jail here a number of years ago."

It is evident the two youths worked all day Sunday in order to make the escape so early in the evening. Spoons formed the first instruments used by Hull and Anderson. With their meals served to them, they sneaked out two tablesaws. With one they made an improvised saw, cutting seven jagged teeth in the bowl edge. They ripped the weak plank of the window sill and then attacked the four inch pine partition between the window and the first bar.

They tried to jam and clawed the boards. From an old map they broke off two pieces of iron with which to pry the boards loose. Once they had the window sill jimmied and shoved out, they converted the two tablesaws into a considerable mortar. This left a space exactly seven inches between the window sill and the first bar. The distance from the bottom of the window is 12 and one-half feet. The two youths had retired. The in-

Lawyers Meet To Decide Court Changes

Reports of the Beloit and Janesville committees of the Rock county bar association were to be given during a meeting in the Beloit municipal court this afternoon. Resolutions are to be made for recommendations to be made to the legislature on changes in the jurisdiction of the municipal courts in Beloit and Janesville.

Action was started in Janesville last month when the state law-making body was asked to give jurisdiction of the two courts. The Beloit attorneys seek to have their municipal court vested with jurisdiction in the event of divorce, the right to try for murder, and the increased civil jurisdiction to $20,000 or more.

Nearly all Janesville attorneys attended the meeting. The recommendations were to be given to the legislative representatives of the county.

MEREDITH TALKS TO BADGER FARMERS

U. S. Secretary of Agriculture Addresses Meeting in Madison.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Madison, Feb. 7.—United States Secretary of Agriculture E. A. Meredith told Wisconsin farmers gathered at the University of Wisconsin today to study marketing conditions for farm products, that the greatest need of the farmer today is "cost statistics."

"The whole problem of the actual and necessary cost of distribution of each commodity," said the secretary, "should be carefully studied under different systems and different conditions until a reasonable and just cost has been obtained."

With the cost of production and the cost of distribution known and with statistics of production, of storage and of the movement of commodities readily available, it should be possible for the intelligent producer, middleman or consumer to determine for himself what any commodity should be worth at a given stage of its distribution and what is fair compensation for any step in the process under various conditions."

Mr. Meredith frankly admitted farmers for their lack of foresight and want of appreciation for the labors of the agricultural research worker.

Much still to be done, he said. "Too many farmers think that little remains to be done," said the secretary. "Many people believe the task of today is simply applying the knowledge already in hand. As a matter of fact we are confronted with the most serious problems. The breeding of domestic animals is still a matter of chance. The control of animal parasites is another matter."

The speaker made a strong plea that farmers rally to the support of "your faithful servants," the scientific research workers in Washington, who, he said, is being slighted in pay and being gradually, against his will, forced to leave the service for more remunerative positions elsewhere.

White to Retire as Chairman of Democratic Party

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Washington, Feb. 7.—The request made by 49 members of the democratic national committee that Chairman George White call a meeting for March 1 of the entire committee to reorganize the party's machinery was the chief topic of discussion today in Washington political circles.

While the discussion aroused by the request took on many angles, one portion of the message was regarded as significant. This was the statement of the 49 members that they wished Chairman White "many years of happiness" and added usefulness upon the retirement which he announced shortly after November 2, his private interests would make it necessary for him to seek.

Spokesmen here for the signers of the telegram say the request for a meeting of the 116 members of the committee was made at this time by Chairman White might lay the matter before the legislative committee, appointed by him several days ago and called to meet here February 17.

Madison, Feb. 7.—Repeal of the secrecy clause of the income tax law was asked in a bill of Senator Severson, Iowa, introduced in the senate this morning. The Severson bill, following recommendation of Gov. Blaine, would open income tax returns to inspection by local authorities and state officers and by citizens generally.

There were 13 senators present at the first regular Monday meeting under the newly adopted rules. The assembly adjourned last Saturday night 2 o'clock this afternoon.

Each of the legislators received 200 copies of the Wisconsin blue book and 100 maps, for which they seldom have use, he said.

A resolution asking that the junior prom, the big university social event, hereafter be held outside of town if possible, was introduced by Senator Roche.

Lieut. Gov. Comings advised the senators that the final week for introduction of bills had opened, and that to avoid possible conflict, all possible legislation should be in before the last meeting of the week.

Splendid Timber in Pres. Harding's Cabinet

STRONG CABINET IS THE VERDICT

Harding Selections Have Been Made for Service and Not to Pay Debts.

By DAVID LAWRENCE.
Washington, Feb. 7.—Enough of the members of the prospective cabinet of President Harding have been selected to catalogue some of the personal characteristics of the men who will endeavor to bring the United States back to normalcy.

Opinions may differ as to this stage of the game to what constitutes a good cabinet or an able cabinet, but the thing Warren Harding had in mind was getting a serviceable cabinet. Democrats may be skeptical, but Republicans in the capital are not only satisfied but enthusiastically expectant.

The Case of Mellon.
Take Andrew W. Mellon of Pittsburgh, who is to be secretary of the treasury. The call to service in his case is an extraordinary piece of luck for Mr. Mellon. Not only is Mr. Mellon the second richest man in America, said to be worth hundreds of millions of dollars—but his executive genius has enabled him to build up organizations of great size with the ease that comes out of masterful planning and calm deliberation. His wealth makes Mr. Mellon no longer interested in the business world, but a type of successful business man who would measure up to campaign promises of efficiency.

About Chas. Hughes.
Consider, next, Charles Evans Hughes, than whom there is no more independent minded individual in public life. There is no anticipation that under his auspices the department of state will be turned upside down for political purposes. There is no anticipation that the personal effort to put the diplomatic and consular service on an efficiency instead of a political basis will at last be realized for Mr. Hughes has not only a reputation for wisdom but a reputation for the pleadings of politicians or the whisperings of ambitious job hunters. The mere fact that a man who occupies a position on the Supreme Court of the United States and a man who was himself within a few electoral votes of being president of the United States should be selected to head the department of state is counted upon to bring prestige to the department and convey an influence of quiet dignity and firmness in the dispatch of business.

Weeks as War Head.
Then there is the secretaryship of war. John W. Weeks, former senator from Massachusetts, is a very wealthy man and therefore has no reason to cater to any interests for future gain as is so often the case with the officials who look upon his position either as a stepping stone socially or as an opportunity in future business or the pursuit of his profession. John Weeks showed his independence when he broke away from the party and voted with the Democrats in favor of the present federal reserve act. He has shown his independence in other ways. It is said he believed that there was plenty of good in the measure. Most of the Republicans at the time took a party view of the matter and voted against the bill. Mr. Weeks knows official Washington and government procedure. It will not take him long to familiarize himself with the war department.

Lowden a Business Man.
Frank O. Lowden, as secretary of the navy, is another piece of good luck for Mr. Harding. The navy department has a staff of naval officers who control naval operations but the head of the department must know the business methods for the disbursement of many millions of dollars in economical fashion and not necessarily naval tactics.

Lowden's record as a business administrator in Illinois was such that he satisfied the Republican party as a whole and he probably would have been nominated at Chicago and elected to the presidency himself but for the mix-up over the use of money to get votes in the convention.

Fail, an Able Man.
Senator Albert B. Fall, of New Mexico, who becomes secretary of the interior, is one of the ablest men in the senate, an idealistic politician and a tireless student of government. He knows the West and its hopes. He knows the political game and its diplomacy. He will be able to deal with Congress and the Harding administration on many matters outside the interior department. Like Franklin Lane, so may Albert Fall prove to be the utility man of the cabinet.

Hoover, a Good Man.
Henry C. Wallace of Des Moines, Iowa, is termed by his admirers "an outstanding Christian gentleman." He has saved the packers without mercy in his weekly magazine. The packers tried hard to dislodge him but Mr. Wallace stood firm. He trusts Wallace and will follow his guidance on matters agricultural. Wallace, who is editor of the farm periodical which bears his name, has been dispensing agricultural wisdom for many years will have a splendid opportunity to practice what he has so long preached.

Politics and the Cabinet.
This said the portfolios of commerce and labor are undecided. As for the individual who will occupy the chair of the department of justice and the post office department, Harry M. Daugherty and Will H. Hays—the off-hand comment of many will be that politics dictated the selections. Perhaps—but many a cabinet would have been better off with a few political minds. Mr. Daugherty can sense the public acrimony against the present administration for organization that it will, it is hoped, relieve many an irritation and many a trouble over the small things of the department. Mr. Hays never hesitated to spend money to get results. He can be counted upon to spend money in the government service for the best interests of the country.

Daugherty Not Mediocre.
Mr. Daugherty is not a mediocre. He is a man of a high character and a high reputation for organization that it will, it is hoped, relieve many an irritation and many a trouble over the small things of the department. At the State Capital

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Madison, Wis., Feb. 7.—Being the "baby" of the state legislature is a distinction that has its drawbacks and problems all its own. It is a position of honor and responsibility, and it is a position that is not to be taken lightly.

at bonus law, which is to be given a hearing by the assembly committee on Thursday, is designed to extend the bonus system to many boys and now benefited, including Wisconsin youths who served in the allied armies, as well as the American ranks. It also changes the required service period to sixty days, instead of ninety, as at present, and includes all men who were inducted into the army prior to November 12, 1918, instead of November 1, as in the existing law.

Higher Barber Fees.
Barbers are going to receive the attention of the senate committee on Thursday. Senator Titus' bill to raise their annual license fee from $1 to $2 comes up for a hearing.

DELEGATES LEAVE FOR "Y" CONVENTION.
J. A. Steiner, general secretary of the Janesville Y. M. C. A., is expected to leave for the Y. M. C. A. convention at Milwaukee on Thursday. He will be accompanied by J. C. Arnold, secretary of the Y. M. C. A. association of the state.

She's Tired of Politics Early.
Mrs. Isetta Brown, widow of Representative William Brown of Kingwood, W. Va., attracted attention at the San Francisco convention of the Democrats last summer when she made a speech and her efforts in the presidential campaign gained her more notice. And now Mrs. Brown says she has tired of politics. She has turned to dairy farming and plans to run a model farm near Kingwood, W. Va.

Fixing Hold-Up Men.
Hold-up men who intimidate their victims with guns will have a special punishment of just five years, the present minimum provided for them if the legislature adopts Assemblyman M. M. Mark's bill. The bill provides for a term of five years for a first offense and ten years for a second offense.

Constitutional Convention.
The constitutional convention question will be reopened Thursday when the judiciary committee takes up Assemblyman Kiesner's joint resolution calling for a referendum vote to decide whether such a convention shall be called. The resolution provides for a vote on the question at the next general election, November 1922.

Tying Up Supreme Court.
Assemblyman William E. Jordan, of Milwaukee, wants to amend the laws so the supreme court can not declare any act unconstitutional except by unanimous decision of all its members. Some close decisions on constitutional questions in the past have prompted the Jordan bill, which the judiciary committee will take up Tuesday. Assemblyman Alex C. Ruffing's initiative and referendum bill will be considered at the same time.

REGISTERS INSIST ON NEW AUTO LAW

Say Registration Money Can Go Into County Till Rather Than Their Pockets.

Defending the auto registration laws as a means of stopping automobile thefts, the Wisconsin Register of Deeds association has replied to the protests against the proposed law by the Auto Trades association. The registers of the state make a frank statement that they are backing the bill and are favoring its passage. The legislation, if passed, would require that each auto be registered and the owners be required to have a certificate from the county register of deeds.

It is the general protest over the bill is from the fact that it will add to the income of the register of deeds, that fault can easily be overcome, it was stated here today. The fee for registration could be turned over to the county.

Check on Thieves.
The stand taken by the registers of deeds of the state through their association in requiring owners to hold a certificate and to give this document at the time of sale, is that it provides a check on thieves disposing of cars. It is pointed out that the law protects the dealer in his sales on credit. If a purchaser pays a small amount down on a car and then sells it, the dealer is out considerable money if the final payment is not made and the purchaser cannot be located.

The registers would clear the present muddle on auto mortgages, claims the association of registers. At present there is nothing to show that a person seeking a loan on an auto is a bona fide owner. They put it up to the lender of the money to verify the ownership claim.

Minnesota Has Law.
Under the auto registration law it would be impossible, it is claimed, for a person to dispose of an auto mobile or obtain a mortgage on the stolen property unless his certificates of title were genuine.

The state of Minnesota has the same law as proposed in Wisconsin in effect, the statement reads. "It is considered to be one of the best laws passed relating to automobiles."

BOYS GIVE STRONG PROGRAM AT CHURCH

Simple, direct and earnest was the program put on by a group of older boys at the Methodist church last evening with Charles Atkinson as leader.

A quartet of boys consisting of Gerald Van Pool, Robert Jacobs, Stewart and James Seoble sang and L. Haeman led in prayer. Leon Griffey spoke of the young men's responsibility to the church that they should become active members and the church should give them something to do.

James Seoble discussed Christian education. Walton Lane described the Sunday school as being the nursery of the church, and Kenneth Venable, the Y. M. C. A. as a place to develop leadership and bring a broader vision. George Terwilliger described the school as being useful in training the mind, and showing a boy how to choose his life work.

Robert Jacobs said boys should be public spirited. Clifford Conry showed the relationship existing with the younger boys, whom each should help by example and encouragement.

In athletics, Kenneth Bick showed that honor training is the only thing that counts, and that a high minded boy will not stand for low tactics. Everett Howard enlarged on the close relationship existing between the country boy and the town boy since the existence of telephones and automobiles.

Normal.—Under the direction of Miss Sarah Connor, local school nurse, a course in public health nursing is being given to the students of the Clark hospital's training school.

One cousin, George Camp, is supposed to have come to Rock county. Records in the court house are being searched in hopes of locating the heir.

PROPOSES CLOSED SEASON ON CLAMS

Matheson Wants Legislature to Vote Special Bill for Rock River.

Following receipt of a petition of 125 voters, a bill has been presented to the legislature by Assemblyman A. E. Matheson to make a closed season for catching clams in Rock river.

It is claimed that there is danger of the clams being exterminated if there is no closed time fixed during the spawning season. The bill will be referred to the fish and game committee and probably will be passed.

For many years fishermen have made a business of gathering clams in Rock river for the shells and for the valuable pearls which are found among them. Some thousands of these are gathered yearly.

Assemblyman Matheson also introduced a bill last week to make the state custodian of a document of the old State Council of Defense and permitting the society to destroy after Jan. 1, 1923, all such documents believed to be of little or no historical or educational value.

Assemblyman Matheson made an address Friday in favor of presenting the desk used by four chief justices of the Wisconsin supreme court to Mrs. J. B. Winslow, wife of the late Chief Justice Winslow, who was the last to occupy the position. His resolution was passed.

BOY STOCK JUDGE DUROC SALE OPENS SETS HIGH RECORD WITH 200 BIDDING

McCann, State Champion, Gets 1466 Points in Field of 57 Contestants.

Breeders From All Parts of State Gather Here Tonight.

Harry McCann of the Jansville high school team probably established a record as a point getter in the stock judging contest at Madison Friday, when he became champion of the state, scoring 1466 points in a field of 57 contestants, each representing a team which was a sectional champion.

Although the Jansville team was nipped out of the right to represent Wisconsin at the International and Dairy stock judging contest at Madison, the high school team showed its ability as was among the foremost in the state. They upheld the reputation firmly established for Rock county stock judges by Milton and Edgerton high schools who won the championship in former years.

J. H. S. 200 behind Victor.

St. Croix Falls team and Belleville nosed out the Jansville team by a slight margin. St. Croix Falls high school team scored 881 points, Belleville 841 and Jansville 805.

McCann, leading the field in individual scores was followed in order by Kenneth Morry, St. Croix Falls; Merlyn Farrell, Delleville; Gordon Hoke, Ithaca; Paul Elderson, St. Croix Falls; La Verne Taylor, Oshkosh; last year's individual champion, Harold Gato, Belleville; Otto Kelsizer, Roberts; Walter Farmer, Gilmanston; and Gordon Joyce, Chilton.

Contest Is Difficult.

Confronted by the best livestock in Wisconsin, the boys were puzzled as it looked almost a matter of guess work to select the best from among the various groups which they judged, so close were the animals in relative merits. Twelve classes of livestock were judged by each team.

The Oshkosh team won first place in dairy cattle. Individual honors in the four breeds of dairy cattle judged went to Verne Taylor, Oshkosh; Harold Gato, Belleville; Gordon Butts, Twin Bluffs; Bernard Voltrah, Greenwood; Otto Kelsizer, Roberts; and Myrland Farrell, Belleville.

Record Due West.

Much credit is due the Jansville high school and the agricultural teacher, Allen West, who coached the boys of the stock judging team and did much to aid in the team's splendid showing at the contest, where each team competing was a champion of four high schools in its section. Jansville won the right to represent this section of the state when it defeated Milton, champions in 1916; Walworth and Fort Atkinson high school teams here.

Get Gold Medals.

The boys were presented with gold medals by the Wisconsin Livestock Breeders' association which the agricultural college of the University of Wisconsin; state department of education; boys and girls clubs promoted the contest.

The state trophy, which to be held, has to be won twice in succession, has been won in former years by Milton high school in 1916; Wood county agricultural school in 1917; Edgerton high school in 1918; and the Mendota school in 1920.

Early indications at the annual sale of Rock County Duroc breeders' association at the pavilion at the fair grounds here this afternoon, were that the award offered for sale under the mail of C. W. T. Doolley would bring comparatively good prices.

About 200 breeders were present at the sale, when it started at 1 o'clock today. Forty-four pure bred sows and girls were offered for sale. The consignees of which were: John L. Fisher, L. A. Ruchti, F. H. Arnold, Selick Brothers, R. J. Nelson, Walsh Brothers, John Waldman and son, C. W. Golden, L. Ruth and Genevieve Hughes, F. J. Hopper, Henry Welland, W. H. Latta, A. G. Holbe, R. K. Overton and son, and Wellnitz and Pickett.

The T. H. Thompson, York, Neb., who was to auctioneer, was unable to be present owing to illness. C. E. Calver was clerk.

McCann's Sale Tomorrow.

Tomorrow J. J. McCann and son will hold their sale at the fair grounds. The John Waldman and son sale will be held at the fair grounds here Saturday. E. A. Hobermoller, Ellettsville, Ind., secretary of the national association, and C. J. Schroeder, Racine, Wisconsin Agriculturist.

Speakers at the dinner tonight will be R. J. Evans, Chicago, secretary of the American Duroc Breeders' association; T. R. Pfander, Peoria, Ill., secretary of the national association, and C. J. Schroeder, Racine, Wisconsin Agriculturist.

The Secret of Charm Never Changes

Throughout the ages it exerts its power—this charm to which the world bows, changing history and making queens—of nations as well as hearts.

Few can describe it, for charm doesn't depend upon beauty alone. The woman who yields it may be dark or fair, of any race or type.

Only this is certain—she has a perfect skin, fresh, youthful, free from blemishes—the irresistible attraction which all understand and admire.

Begin today to give your complexion the care it needs and this charm will also be yours. It's a beauty secret of ancient Egypt and the beautiful Cleopatra.

Before you sleep, cleanse with Palm and Olive oils

Bad complexions are largely due to lack of proper cleansing. The pores become clogged, then enlarged, then irritated. Blackheads and blotches follow.

Soft and flabby skins often show the lack of a cold water tonic. Rough skins are often caused by using harsh, irritating soaps.

The best preventive is a daily cleansing with Palmolive soap. It makes a balmy, creamy lather, for the base is palm and olive oils. A gentle massage makes it penetrate. A rinsing takes it out, and with it come all accumulations which have clogged the skin.

Finish with a dash of cold water. Then your skin will be fresh and rosy, clear, soft, smooth.

Done at night, with a finishing touch of cold cream, this means that all night long your skin will have a needed chance to rest and breathe.

A lesson from stage women

All women can learn something from the women of the stage, who use much rouge, much powder.

But they remove them before they sleep. And with them the oil, the dirt and perspiration which clog up the pores of the skin.

Their complexions will show you that they do no harm when skins are treated the right way.

Only 10c, yet supreme

Palmolive soap costs little, yet it forms the best skin soap the world ever knew. It employs palm oil from Africa; olive oil from Spain. It combines them in a perfect emollient.

It soothes while it cleanses, softens while it cleans. No price can buy anything better.

The Palmolive price is due to the fact that millions have come to employ it. And we have worked for years to bring it within the reach of all.

On dry skin it is well to apply cold cream, both before and after washing.

Ancient beauties knew the way

Roman beauties, in their famous baths, used palm and olive oils. Egyptian beauties used them in Cleopatra's time.

Now modern science finds no better way to beauty than by scientific blending of these oils.

C. OF C. TO ADJUST RENT DIFFICULTIES

Special Committee to be Named to Arbitrate With Tenants and Landlords.

Rent problems here will be studied and where differences exist between landlord and tenant a committee appointed by the Chamber of Commerce will arbitrate. This step followed discussion in which charges of rent profligence were aired.

Points figured largely in the arguments present. R. J. Cunningham, real estate and insurance operator, taking the side for the investor, and L. A. Markham, manager of housing of the Chamber of Commerce, took the side for the tenant.

Markham Cites Facts

The problem here is to find reasonable places for the mass of small income according to Mr. Markham. Landlords are reasonable, he said, where the matter is talked over and in some cases reduce the prices they ask, but there are special cases that need attention. He pointed out that some flat owners were content with 4 percent on their investment until October, then raised from $25 and $40 to $50 and $70. He is considered considerably more than the 10 percent held to be a fair profit on rents. On the other hand, he told of a case where the rent was reduced from $100 to $35.

"The matter cannot be solved quickly," he said.

350 Month Fair Rent.

According to figures offered by Mr. Cunningham, 12 1/2 percent is held to be a fair charge according to present conditions, which would be $50 monthly on a house assessed at $400. He based his figures as follows:

Assessed valuation $3,500; taxation, not including special assessments, 1 1/2 percent; insurance, 2 1/2 percent; water, 1 1/2 percent; average tenant, 1 1/2 percent yearly; loss of rent and inability to collect rent, one month in two years, 1/2 percent; depreciation, 1 1/2 percent; present income on money in gilt edge bonds 7 percent, making a total of 12 1/2 percent.

"You cannot build a house to rent at a reasonable price," said Mr. Cunningham, advocating the building of homes to live in rather than for rental.

A Few Cases Given.

A few of the cases laid before the meeting by Mr. Markham were: Two furnished rooms, 8 by 10, occupied by a man, his wife and young child, $25 per month; a room, $32; one room with use of kitchen, $44; house no modern with no basement, furnace and no water, $50; a room house, heated by stove, $4; a room, having no roomer at $12 and another at $10, the one at $12 out of work and unable to pay. In his last case, he landlord jumped in and helped out.

"I will keep prejudice out of this question," said Mr. Markham.

E. J. Haunerson was chairman of the meeting.

He was taken to the federal house where he was given his freedom on $500 bond. The case will probably come up next month. He was to have appeared in municipal court tomorrow, but Deputy U. S. Marshal Will Toulton swore out a federal warrant.

$1,200 DAMAGE IN BLAZE NEAR CITY

Milk Shed on John Fisher Farm Completely Destroyed by Fire Today.

Fire destroyed the milk shed on the farm of John L. Fisher, 3 1/2 miles south of the city, this morning. The fire caused an estimated loss of $1,200. Although outside the city limits, the local fire department responded to a telephone call and succeeded in preventing the fire from spreading to the house and other farm buildings.

For more than an hour the firemen coped with the flames, using chemicals and pumping water from a tank and a cistern. Had it not been for the presence of water, the entire lot of buildings might have been wiped out.

A quantity of valuable milk machinery, including separators, was either ruined or partially destroyed. There were no cattle in the shed. The cause of the fire is believed to have been a stove. It was discovered about 5:40 o'clock this morning.

The Fisher farm is located about a mile south of the interurban station. It is famed for its pure bred Holstein cattle.

Dixon, Waukegan, Ill.; Charles W. Leck, Fond du Lac; and Mrs. Michael Horky, Afton.

John Freeman Kemmerer was born Sept. 17, 1834 in a little log cabin near the town line in the town of Rock. He was the son of Samuel H. and Elizabeth Gish Kemmerer. His parents came overland from Pennsylvania in the fall of 1831 and settled on a farm in the town of Rock and later in La Prairie where they resided until 1856. They then retired and moved to this city.

John and his wife were born to them and John Freeman was the fourth child. Others, all living are: Abraham, Minnesota; Charles W. Kemmerer, Madison, Wis.; George I. Kemmerer, all of this city; Mrs. Ida Van Valen, Yonkers, N. Y. The father Samuel H. Kemmerer died in March 1891 at the age of 70 and Mrs. Kemmerer died in September, 1915.

John Kemmerer was married Sept. 12, 1877 to Miss Ella E. Smith, daughter of Arlen E. and Olivia Pika Smith. They settled on a farm in the town of La Prairie and four years later moved to the town of Turtle. Four children were born to them: George Irving, a professor of chemistry at the University of Wisconsin; Mrs. Fred Weaver, this city; Forest Glen, on a farm east of Clinton; and Walter Freeman, on the home farm; there are also five grand children.

Mr. Kemmerer contributed much to the community having always been active in church and civic affairs. He was a member of the Methodist church until the churches united when he became a Presbyterian. One of the organizers of the Clinton Y. M. C. A. he was president for several years.

Mrs. Margaret Osborn.

Funeral services for Mrs. Margaret Osborn, who died at 9:30 o'clock Saturday evening at her home on East street, were held at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon at the home of her son, A. E. Magee, 304 Madison street.

Rev. James A. McGowan, Presbyterian church, officiated and interment was in Oak Hill cemetery. Pallbearers were William H. Blair, Mildred L. Calkins, Henry M. Hanson, Robert M. Deschamps, John F. Ketchum, and Alvin Maxwell.

Mrs. Osborn was a member of the local Presbyterian church for 34 years and was among the first settlers of Janesville. She was born in the town of Warren county, Pa., Oct. 9, 1837, and came to Janesville in September, 1855, making this city her home since that time.

She is survived by three sons, P. F. Magee, town of Janesville; E. F. Magee and A. E. Magee, this city; one stepdaughter, Mrs. Lillian Cary Aldrich, Milton; one grandson, George L. Magee, Manila, Philippine Islands; one great granddaughter, and several great great grandchildren.

Wausau, Wis.—William Hoppe and William Kammerer pleaded guilty to selling moonshine and were fined $200 and costs.

PROSPECTS BRIGHT FOR BAND STAND

$4,200 Estimated to Build—Mayor Says Council Will Advance Cash.

Construction of a band stand here to provide employment for some of those men out of work and to cost about $4,200 is a possibility, following the meeting of the forum of the Chamber of Commerce at the Grand hotel at noon. A committee, headed by William L. Ford, will appear before the city council at its next meeting to ask that a sum of $2,500 be appropriated, which, according to Mayor Thomas E. Volski, was inserted in the city budget for this purpose during the commission form of government.

The $2,500 mentioned by Mayor Volski, reverted to the general fund of the city when it was not used, he said, and while it does not stand as a special band stand fund, it is still there and may be used. He declared he would suggest to the council that it vote this money and any additional amount needed.

The building suggested, according to C. J. Hayes, contractor, would be a combination concert station, octagonal in shape, and cost approximately $4,200. To keep the ground level it would be constructed of paving brick furnished by the city. The figures include plumbing, except connection with the sewer. Materials may be furnished at cost if plans of the committee work out.

TWO BOYS IN DARING JAIL DELIVERY

side corridor had been left unlocked, leaving the prisoners the entire cell room.

Escape Is Miracled.

It is a miracle that the two could wiggle through such a small space, for it is even smaller than the space between the two bars through which Eddie Fay escaped. Both youths being over five feet tall.

Once they succeeded in making the small opening they had to wiggle through head first and then drop. The boys escaped in the south wing of the first floor and below the window from which Fay escaped.

When the warden loosened the boards and bricks the two were careful to secrete signs of the attempt. Bricks were taken into the inside cell and hidden under the bath tub. The boys were seen to escape from beneath the bunks. As longer boards were obtained, it is evident they had used them to pry loose the bricks and mortar for the escape.

Drag-Net Thrown Out.

The Davis automobile was stolen from Fifth avenue about 8:30 o'clock last night. S. C. Sorenson, had the car, which was a 1921 model car, having been obtained last Friday.

When the escape was discovered at 6 o'clock this morning, the sheriff's office put out a drag-net around Janesville. Telephone calls were sent in a 100 mile circle and all roads blocked.

George P. Hall, sheriff at Janesville, Wis., saw the new Ford car tearing through the village. He stopped the machine at the point of his arrest. Both Ed and Anderson were identified. In making the trip to the jail Hall broke loose and again escaped. He ran across the court house yard and was seen in making his getaway.

The sheriff did not care let loose of Anderson to pursue Hall. Deputy sheriffs warned away chase and pursued Hall across country. Both Ed and Anderson were reported to have been going 40 miles an hour, the limit speed of the machine, in their attempt to get through Janesville.

On Way Back to City.

Anderson was in jail on a 90-day sentence from the Beloit municipal court on the charge of Vagrancy. Hall was being held in jail until parole and a 14 day sentence for the theft of a bicycle in Beloit. Both are from Beloit and were sentenced there. Hall last week was sentenced to Green Bay and then released by the town and the sentence suspended.

Sheriff Cash Whipple left this noon for Janesville to bring back the two, who will be arrested tomorrow in Janesville on a warrant charging the theft of the Davis automobile.

A warrant on this charge is to be obtained by District Attorney S. G. Dunwiddie this afternoon.

"They could be brought up for breaking jail but the punishment can be made severe enough for grand larceny," said the district attorney.

Mid 10-hour Start.

It was quick work by the sheriff's office in landing the two. They had a start of more than ten hours from the time they escaped. Probably last night they were out for eight or ten hours. The Davis machine driven by Sorenson was parked on Fifth avenue, from 7 o'clock and was missed at 8:30.

Sheriff Whipple is expected to bring the two some time tonight. The car will be brought back to this city Tuesday or Wednesday.

OLD STAGE DRIVER DIES IN BELLOIT

Joel Barnes, driver of a stage coach between Beloit and Janesville in the early fifties, before the railroads were built, died Friday evening at his home in Beloit at the age of 89.

He was born Nov. 11, 1832, in Vermont and came to Beloit when 19 years old. One daughter, Mrs. Eliza Adams, and six grandchildren survive. Funeral services were held at 9 o'clock this morning at the Catholic cemetery, of which he was sexton "for some years." He was a central figure among the volunteer fire fighters who organized the first fire company in Beloit.

BORDER COUNTIES RECLAIMING LAND

Government Reports Shows Drainage.

Rock county had 15,792 acres in organized drainage enterprises up to 1920, according to a tabulation issued by the bureau of census, department of commerce. This county has 5,372 improved acres and a total of 10,420 unimproved acres.

There were 4,656 acres drained in Rock county which gives a percentage of 2.4 for a cost of $38.75.

Its Projects in State.

In the state the total areas in organized drainage enterprises up to 1920 amounted to 313,569 acres. The total land area of the state is given as being 35,302,840 acres and the cost of organized drainage work was $206,756. A total of 82,000 acres are being reclaimed in this state from swamps and overflow lands.

The total improved farm land is 27,384, the timbered and cut over land 16,000 acres and other unimproved land amounts to 39,139 acres, according to the government figures. The report shows the enormous importance of the drainage enterprises, which have been undertaken in an organized method during the last five years.

Dane County Is High

The acreage in organized drainage work in other counties than Rock are as follows: Walworth, 3,210; Dane, 44,238; Green, 2,700; Jefferson, 17,461.

The improved acres from organized drainage work in Wisconsin are: Walworth, 4,018; Dane, 6,533; Green, 730; Jefferson, 5,620. The unimproved acreage in the other counties: Dane, 27,704; Green, 2,924; Jefferson, 11,815; Walworth, 4,325.

The amount of timber on the land of the counties named is very small. The statement tends to show the highly developed agriculture interests in southern Wisconsin.

AN END TO THE BUYING STRIKE.

It looks as though the buying strike was at an end. One of the results of such a strike is to deplete its own purpose. Gradually stocks are depleted by necessity and in the end the buyer becomes the bidder, and the market begins to rise. Surveys of stocks and the market prospect is not reassuring for the buyer. Cuts in prices, selling below costs and on a falling market has reduced stocks so that purchases for the future are on a new and higher level. Reports from the textile manufacturing centers are that there has been a decided steadying of the market and that the price of cotton and woolen goods shows an upward trend. Naturally there will come a readjustment with a basis on which the merchant can buy with some degree of safety and assure to the retail buyer that there will be no change for some months. This time seems to have arrived and the buyer may safely buy at the bottom price.

In a time like this there is always a flood of poor quality goods offered for sale. This is where the buyer may well be watchful. What is needed now to make business good is to get business started and buying go ahead normally. Put the money in the channel. It will come back in the usual course, in the sale of products, in labor, in aroused industry.

That's the big solution of the business ills today—BUY.

A CRIME.

There are a hundred shock shocked men incarcerated in the insane asylum at Mendota. An effort is being made to have them cared for in some place where there is a hope of their recovery. One overseas soldier, who went through the hell of battle and became mentally ill was discharged from Mendota in rags and penniless, the Gazette is authoritatively told. "Does anyone remember back in the spring of 1918 when all the lying promises were being made to the young men of the nation if they would offer themselves as cannon fodder to the German army? Or has it been forgotten?"

HOW MUCH WE OWE TO SANITARY INSPECTION.

Janesville has been comparatively free from contagious disease this winter and the reason is plain: there has never been such organized care of the public health and sanitation as now. The head of the city health department has been most efficient in his work and with the sanitary inspector has been able to check disease at its source and prevent it going farther. Dr. Welch is only a part time officer of the city, but has been able to devote enough effort to the work in hand, to execute the laws and enforce the rules governing disease reports, and the few isolated cases that have come up have had such immediate attention that epidemics have not been able to follow after the incipient case.

Janesville is a clean city. Sources of disease, germ breeding filth, alleys filled with rubbish and refuse, uncleanly places for the selling of food products and unclean food itself, have been removed or wiped out entirely. Dr. Woodworth has had a good training for the place. He has worked indefatigably as the first officer in the city to hold this important position. His report of inspections, notices given, and general activity shows constant watchfulness and great energy. There has been no lagging. Janesville certainly owes much of its health conditions to this continuous effort. Following an open winter almost invariably comes a period of many ills. Disease of a contagious nature has a better chance than when the winter is of the thoroughly cold and genuine old fashioned kind. There will be need of caution and watchfulness on the part of the officials of the health department, and the city may be assured that it will be done with the present health organization head and inspector.

HONOR FOR ROCK COUNTY.

More than a passing honor has come to Rock county and the Janesville High school in the winning of the highest prize in the state for junior stock judging by Harry McCann. The team, too, under the tutelage of Allen West, has won a signal victory as the result of hard work and application in securing third place among the teams of the state. The Gazette believes it carries the congratulations of all Southern Wisconsin to the three boys and their teacher.

HOW GERMANY CAN PAY.

Germany can pay the reparation bill, as she must, by exercising some degree of economy. She can cut the enormous millions from the war program which in spite of treaty limitations seems to be going on. She need fear nothing from aggression from the outside, as the allies will necessarily be obliged to guarantee her integrity of territory and her peace, no matter if she had no army or navy. Neither will be needed by Germany for many years. Lloyd George answered the critics of the Supreme council Saturday when he stated that Germany could and must pay. There is no time to feed the German nation on soft butter. It is a time for reparation, indemnity, and paying the fiddler. The propaganda to make it easy for Germany is from those who have German securities or are interested in credits in which Ger-

Chasing the Birds Out of the Air.

By WEDDING C. QUINN.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 7.—A thousand feet in the air a wedge of wild geese is winging southward over Barnegat Bay. Near shore a hydroplane leaves the water with a roar and begins to climb. Having reached the level of the wedge it dives straight after them. The big birds are making perhaps 50 miles an hour, but the machine is doing twice that. In five minutes it is but 50 yards behind them. Their steady honking breaks into a wild melody of alarm. To them this thing is a terror inconceivable. It is a hawk as big as a house and twice as swift as any bird that flies. It is a hawk that roars like the North wind. And then, suddenly, it begins to spit fire and flame, and the blue wedge crumples in the air and falls to the water far below.

The geese have been shot at before. In fact, they have been shot at all the way from Southern Alberta to New Jersey. The sound of a shotgun is for them a signal to cover out of range. And so they tower now, climbing on strong pinions a hundred feet straight into the air. And the plane towers after them, roaring more loudly than ever. There are more shots and three more geese go hurtling toward the water. The survivors, honking in hoarse terror, fly every which way. Some tower, some plunge toward the water, some go north and some go south. The plane pursues one lone goose that happens to be in front of it, kills him, and then descends gracefully to gather its prey.

This is a scene the like of which has been enacted again and again in recent months, and it is one which has provoked the ire of game protectors. The Biological Survey here is especially aroused over the killing of wild fowl from airplanes, because the migratory birds are the foremost of which is entrusted to the survey, specifically forbids the taking of wild fowl in that way. The survey has obtained several arrests and convictions, and it is ready to send men to investigate any case of such violations. This hunting in the air is a new thing, and the survey hopes to scotch it before it has grown to dangerous proportions. It hopes to do this in two ways—by arrest and prosecution of offenders, and by appealing to the sportsmanship and self-interest of the hunters. For it is hardly fair to hunt birds by a method which leaves them no chance of escape, and it is hardly intelligent to hunt them by a method which has the effect of driving them clear out of the country.

That is the immediate and striking effect of airplane hunting. The birds are not slow to see that they have an enemy which it is impossible to escape. After one experience of being pursued by a plane, a flock of wild geese or ducks will often leave that vicinity for good and all. A whole season of legitimate sport from blind and bent is spoiled for a few minutes of spectacular slaughter in mid-air.

The migratory bird law, which prohibits the shooting of wild fowl during their migrations northward toward their nesting grounds, has made American wild fowl more abundant in the last few years than they had been for decades before. Sportsmen in general have come to appreciate its value. They are now asked not to undo the good work by the use of a new and untried method of invading the air, which has heretofore been the sanctuary inviolate of all wild birds.

The hunting of birds from planes seems to have begun toward the end of the war when some Navy hydroplanes on practice flights began chasing flocks of wild fowl, apparently for lack of anything better to do. The Biological Survey at once took the matter up with the Navy Department and the practice was stopped. But after the war a great many military planes were sold for small sums and a number of them were taken to the market. The combined air-and-water craft, especially has become a popular toy for young men with money, and its purchase and use seems to be almost unrestricted by law.

As a result, cases of hunting in the air have been reported with increasing frequency. They have come from the Atlantic coastal region, from the big middlewestern rivers, from California. In California a motion picture film was made of the shooting of ducks from an airplane, and it was subsequently suppressed at the request of the Biological Survey.

In California, too, was made the only attempt to justify the hunting of wild fowl from airplanes. California is one of the few places in the world where wild ducks and geese are so abundant that they sometimes constitute a pest. In some parts of California they devour the rice crops at such a rate that some measures have to be taken to kill them or drive them away. Every year the Biological Survey is besought for permits to hunt these ducks out of season in order to keep them off the rice fields. It has often appeared that off the rice fields. It has been often appeared that those who apply for the permits were more interested in getting the ducks than in saving the rice. These self-appointed protectors of the rice fields decided that the airplane would be just the thing with which to chase the ducks out of the country, but the Biological Survey has not agreed with them. It makes the claim that the recent invention of the self-hitting acetylene flash gun has solved the problem of scaring the birds off the rice fields in the most effective and economical way. This gun is based on the simple principle that the mixture of water with a certain chemical makes acetylene gas. The machine is designed to drop the water and effect this mixture at regular intervals, the resultant gas being ignited by a pilot light. The gun is said to be simple, inexpensive and sure of operation. It will fire a shot with a great flash and bang every minute all night long if desired. And it has the great advantage that it scares away not only the ducks, but also the blackbirds, which do about half the damage, but which are not to be used for hunting, even as a protector of the crops.

many is involved, or have more sympathy with Germany than with the allies.

It will take a few days only to end our state of war with Germany after President Harding enters office. Commercial relations can then be opened and trade established again. Germany has many things we can use and do use and want to buy, and we have goods which Germany wants. This—the opening of trade—of course could have been done long ago had President Wilson not vetoed the Knox resolution ending the war. It will not be vetoed again. The big outstanding fact remains—Germany must make reparation for her war on the world and pay her penalty for her crime.

George Johns, the veteran editor of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, says the short editorial is the best and a stick of dynamite is of more value than a lot of unexploded powder. Still we do not think that Mr. Johns would want to use dynamite all the time. Sometimes it is easier to pull a tooth while the patient is under the influence of an anesthetic than by hitting it with a hammer.

We suggest that Germany make the Bergolls pay the indemnity. There is Grover Cleveland Bergolls over there, and a few thousand others like him left here. America will be willing to let them all go back.

Wood county has voted, through its county board, to spend $300 for two tourist camps in the county. Pumps will be installed in wells; cooking ovens and other attractions will be provided for the tourist. Rock county take notice.

Russian paper money is about as cheap as news print over here. We might import some.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST.

UNFORGETTABLE THINGS.
They ain't much, seen from day to day—
The big city, the crowd, the way.
The church spire, on the meadow place
Lit up by many a friendly face.
You pass 'em by a dozen times,
An' never think of them in rhymes.
Or in the poet's singing. Yet
They're all the things you can't forget.
An' they're the things you'll miss some day
If ever you should go away.

The people here ain't much to see—
Jes' common folks like you an' me,
Doin' the ordinary tasks,
Which life of a town folk asks.
Old Dr. Green, still fair 'round
Go where his patients can be found.
An' Parson Hill, serene of face,
Carryin' God's message every place.
An' Jim, who keeps the grocery store—
Yet they are folks you'd hunger for.

They seem so plain when close to view.
Bill Barker, an' his brother, too.
The Jacksons, men of higher rank
Because they chance to run the bank.
Yet friends to every one round here.
Quiet an' kindly an' sincere.
Not much to sing about or praise,
Livin' their lives in modest ways.
Yet in your memory they'll stay
If ever you should go away.

These are things an' these the men
Some day you'll long to see again.
Now it's so near you scarcely see
The beauty of that big elm tree,
But some day later on you'll find
An' wonder if it's still so green.
An' if the birds return to sing
An' make their nests there every spring.
Mebbe you scorn them now, but they
Will bring you back again some day.

ON THE SPUR OF THE MOMENT

By ROY K. MOULTON.

CONFESSIONS OF A CYCLO.
I never feel like committing homicide until I meet up with one of those "Don't Worry" boys. I believe the next thing should be a drive in behalf of devastated column conductors. I think all politics should be held in the winter and the nobody would have to go to them. I have often asked why all the big movie houses run the same news reel, but I have never found out.

I have noticed that the telephone always works when there is somebody on the wire to whom I do not want to talk. I am never impressed by a business man who makes himself hard to see. I am very fond of cold weather, but I would rather have it in the summer when it is needed, than in the winter when it is not.

I am not, naturally vindictive, but it is hard for me to be decent to a neighbor who washes and wipes the dishes before he goes to bed. I don't care whether I ever see a woman's ear again, so they needn't uncover them on my account. I see the cost of living has come down 10 per cent since last July, but I hadn't read it in the papers, I never would have known it.

OH, VERY WELL!

We are greatly interested by experts that fifteen million foreigners are planning to come here next year on ships that will carry only 150,000.

Who's Who Today

LOUIS BARTHOLO.
A year ago, while chairman of the committee on foreign affairs of the French republic, Louis Bartholo was assassinated. David Lloyd George of the British empire violently and bitterly in a speech in the House of Commons, declared that the British had derived no benefit under terms of the Versailles treaty, and that the British had been deceived by the French. Bartholo was the son of a tinsmith, who started both himself and his wife to give their boy an excellent education and a university training at Bordeaux. Joining the bar in Paris, he entered the chambers of one of the great names of the twentieth century for his native Basque-Pyrenees, which he has represented there ever since. He began by allying himself with Premier Felix Faure, the apostle of pacifism, and then he moved to the manufacturing industries. But he has moved a few points leftward at each election, and while some declare him to be a past master in opportunism, yet it cannot be denied that he has moved with the times and possesses a marvelous faculty for keeping abreast of popular sentiment.

Why was he chosen for a post in the new cabinet? First, because, unlike most French leaders, he is not wedded to one doctrine, but has been identified with many, even of a contradictory nature. He can, therefore, hold himself to the policy needed in the present crisis. Second, he is above all, a Frenchman, no matter what his policies may be. Bartholo is the son of a tinsmith, who started both himself and his wife to give their boy an excellent education and a university training at Bordeaux. Joining the bar in Paris, he entered the chambers of one of the great names of the twentieth century for his native Basque-Pyrenees, which he has represented there ever since. He began by allying himself with Premier Felix Faure, the apostle of pacifism, and then he moved to the manufacturing industries. But he has moved a few points leftward at each election, and while some declare him to be a past master in opportunism, yet it cannot be denied that he has moved with the times and possesses a marvelous faculty for keeping abreast of popular sentiment.

THE CAUSE OF DIABETES

Diabetes is an impairment of the capacity of the body to utilize certain food elements, particularly starches and sugars. About two persons in every thousand adults have diabetes, as compared with about 10 in every thousand adults who have active tuberculosis (nearly all of us have latent or inactive tuberculosis). Diabetes may occur in childhood, but most cases are of adult onset, and it is worth while to remember that most cases of food drunkenness or overeating, as indicated by excess weight, our affairs, and on such a social and domestic life has long been suspected as a causative factor of diabetes, so many cases occurring in individuals who freely admit having indulged such strain. "Nerve strain" is all right as camouflage, just as "nervous breakdown" does very well when the doctor thinks the patient's condition had best be kept to himself. It is curious and inexplicable, if "nerve strain" has any relation to diabetes, that of about 40,000 soldiers passing through a hospital camp in France but two were found to have diabetes, though routine urine analysis was carried out in all cases.

In the comparatively few cases of congenital diabetes, which are more frequently exposed to good food and too much of that, than to any other possible factor, as Dr. E. P. Joslin points out, this country are exceedingly fond of diabetes, and of too much good food. Joslin remarks that overfeeding begins in childhood and lasts all the way through life. In the comparative absence of the Jewish people in America. There are probably more fat Jews of mature age than over-nourished persons of any other race in the country.

Diabetes is, popularly supposed, to occur more frequently among the well-to-do than among the poor. If so, it is only because the well-to-do are more generally given to gluttony.

Hereditarily was once deemed a possible factor of diabetes, but it is more likely that the habit of overeating and the tendency to diabetes are handed down from father to son or from mother to daughter. The average person really imagines the capacity of the body to utilize certain food elements, particularly starches and sugars. NEBRASKA'S STATE DAIRY HERD RANKS HIGH IN COUNTRY

By ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Lincoln, Neb.—The development of eight cows with a yearly average of 900 pounds of butter each, places the dairy herd at the University of Nebraska among the best herds in the United States and at the top of the list of agricultural experiment station herds.

All eight of the high producing Nebraska cows are Holsteins. At the head of the list is La Verna, champion milk and butter producer of the state and one of the best sixteen cows of the world. In a year ending December 31, she produced 131,056 pounds of butter and 29,554 pounds of milk. Among the eight also is Sultana, champion 2-year-old butter producer of Nebraska. She produced 86.9 pounds of butter in one year, a remarkable record for a 3 year old, and exceeding all previous production figures in this state for a cow of her age.

Another cow in the group is Kato Gerben, who was the 3-year-old champion of the world. She is now 13 years old. At six years of age she produced 851 pounds of butter in one year. In seven milking periods, she produced a total of 215,123 pounds of milk containing 4,400 pounds of fat. The nutrients in this milk could fat the carcasses of forty-seven 1,400-pound steers. Kato Gerben has produced six full calves which sold for $2,900.

This remarkable dairy herd represents a dozen or more years of careful breeding on the part of the university station and the college of agriculture. Extensive experiments are being carried on along several lines of development, with the view of demonstrating the possibilities of breeding and feeding to encourage the dairy industry.

Petroleum Industry Proves Value of Self-Government

"It took the excessive war-induced centralization of economic and industrial functions in the hands of government to dramatize the essential fallacy of trying to substitute the politician for men functionally fit for the job in hand."—Glenn Frank, Editor of the Century Magazine, in The Politics of Industry.

The clarity of Mr. Frank's reasoning was demonstrated by the efficiency of the petroleum industry during the war-time period.

Petroleum was the one basic industry which was left in the hands of men trained "for the job in hand" and their efficiency enabled the Allies to float to victory on a sea of oil.

The lessons learned during that period of stress have enabled the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) to increase its usefulness as a manufacturer of petroleum products.

A SWEETHEART AT THIRTY

The Story of a Woman's Transformation

BY MARION RUBINCAM

CHAPTER LXIX. POOR JAMES

The atmosphere of hostility lasted as long as Helen stayed. If she felt it—and she must—she never let it—she really was sensitive—she never let it—And though when we left, the air of disapproval was still like a cloud about us, in some measure it had lightened.

But at first Jim refused to allow Violet to go back to the city at all. "I won't have my daughter living near such a woman," he said. "I don't think Edith had any sense, but I guess Esther was right, she hasn't. Not only lets her know such people, but knows 'em herself." A woman cutting off her hair like a man and wearing a man's suit!

Opposition didn't flared up into Esther's eyes. She swung about on Jim. "There's some that can talk about morals and some that can't," she said. And Jim subsided.

After that nothing was said against our departure for the city. We were even invited to the college. The question, though the college did not open until September. But Violet did have one examination to take, to work off a condition.

"A perfect treasure house," Helen said, following us through the dim attic. "Smell those lovely things from the college! I know they have an awful odor—but it's all so quaint. Look at this," she called out a few minutes later, holding aloft a large box. "Isn't this hideous, isn't it lovely? Vi, do you think your mother would give it to me—you say everything up here is junk."

"What is it?" Vi asked, peering through the gloom.

"It seems to be an ocean of blue velvet breaking on a shore of pearls," Helen explained, bringing the object over to us.

"It's a handkerchief box given to another woman who was a girl," Vi said. "I remember she told me I picked half the shells off when I was a baby and ate them."

"I'll dig up some new shells from Coney," Helen said, "and put on fresh velvet. I'll use it in my tea shop."

"Your tea shop?" Esther exclaimed when Helen asked prettily for the box.

"We had to explain what a tea room was, and that this one was also a restaurant. But she was very grateful about the box."

But it was James who was captivated by our interesting guest. He worked hard and fast all day, to get off early. He washed and changed into a clean shirt for supper, and stole off to the porch afterwards to talk to Helen before the family assembled out there.

"Think of seeing this all the time!" he said, his eyes glowing with twilight. "Look at the billowing ocean of mist, where the meadow lies and the twilight opens out upon it. It reminds me of a bit from Keats."

"Do you like poetry?" she turned to him, her intelligent brown eyes all at once behind her dark-rimmed glasses.

"No much. That is, I do when you quote it. But I like machines, and wheels, and engines that turn things. There's sort of poetry in them, isn't there?" He asked it shyly. I never heard James talk this way.

"Indeed, yes. There would have to be poetry, for there is rhythm in the purr of a well-oiled engine, and in the hum of flying wheels," she answered.

"That's it—that's what I feel. Don't you?" He turned eagerly to his sister.

Vi nodded, bobbing her golden head up and down in her eagerness to agree.

"Tell me some more about it," Helen said. She sat down quietly, instinctively feeling she must break the thread of the boy's thoughts.

"I had a little workshop where I had a peach of an engine," he said hurriedly. "I made it by using a strap and pulley, but I was going to get it perfect, as I thought it out, then take it over to a garage where I work sometimes, and start it going with gas—it was a gasoline engine."

He explained.

"And what happened?" Helen asked.

"It—It got broken," the boy's head turned away. And I knew Helen knew, in spite of his brave attempt to hide the truth. "I was going to run away," he turned to her again and spoke almost fiercely. "But every time I was ready to go—I just couldn't. I think it's easier to stay. Do you think I ought to run away, when I said so?"

"That's for you to decide," Helen said. "Whatever is in your own soul will always lead you."

"It's easier to stay," James repeated, all the fire gone from his voice.

Heart and Home Problems

BY ELIZABETH THOMPSON.
Letters May Be Addressed to Mrs. Thompson, in Care of the Gazette.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I have a friend who seems to love me when there isn't any other girl around, but at school he never cares for me at all. Please tell me why he does this.

Very often when a boy begins to take interest in a girl or in girls he feels embarrassed and tries to hide the fact from others for fear he will be teased. I suppose this is the case with the boy you mention.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a married woman and have two children, school age. My husband is a good provider and is good to me. We have kept my mother for the last 12 years.

She owns property in Wisconsin and gets rent for it right along. I have quite a few brothers who never give anything toward her support and don't keep her of the time.

My husband is willing to keep her, but he does think my brothers ought to help too. So she has not got anything toward her support.

What would you advise me to do? ANXIOUS TO KNOW.

Yes indeed, your brothers ought to help. Surely each could afford to help. I suppose you have a good month, and with all contributing you would receive enough to relieve your husband of the expense of having your mother-in-law live with you. You ought to be thankful to have your mother with you, but at the same time it is only right that your brothers should show their regard for your mother by helping with her support. Write and tell them how you feel about the matter, and doubtless some of them at least will respond to your appeal.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: What would you do? Something that you simply loathed to please your parents, please yourself and try something else?

I think that since I have just found out what the big ambition is in my life I should follow that. If I had known this five years ago, how much easier it would be now.

I am discouraged and don't know what to do because everywhere I turn people scowl at me.

ROSEMARY C.

It is difficult to answer you without knowing more about your case. It seems to me, however, that you should choose for your life work what interests you.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl.

WHAT SHALL I DO?
Answered by VIRGINIA PAGE

Gray for Girls

"Dear Miss Page—Is silver gray worn by young girls? If yes, what color could I wear? I am 17. And kindly settle our dispute—A says when a president of a club is elected the second term it is proper to thank the girls and make a speech; B says it isn't necessary. What do you think?"—Marie.

Yes, gray in that lovely silvery, pearly shade is extremely fashionable for young girls this season. It is prettiest, I think, when made simply, with very little trimming—perhaps white collar and cuffs if it is a daytime frock, or for evening a touch of color (or lined with color) of almost any shade you like and find becoming, for almost all shades combine well with gray.

I surely think that when a club of girls honors one of their number with a second election to their highest office, she should thank them. It need not be a regular "speech," but surely she should say a few gracious words of appreciation.

Apple Baskets

"Dear Miss Page—In using hollowed out apples filled with nuts and candy, I'm at a loss to know how to eat these. Are they supposed to be put on the table at first? Surely we don't eat the shells, too. Will you tell me?"—Gladys.

I have never happened to see apples used in this way, but I suppose they are intended for a table decoration as well as to serve as containers for the nuts and candy. In this case they would be put on the table first, and the shells should not be eaten. When hollowed out apples are used as cups or baskets in which to serve salad, it is customary to eat the apple shell as well as the salad.

All inquiries addressed to Miss Page in care of the "What Shall I Do?" department will be answered in the columns of this paper. This requires considerable time, however, owing to the great number received. So if a personal or quicker reply is desired, a stamped and self-addressed envelope must be enclosed with the questions.

Are They Unhappy?

Countess of Poulett, formerly Sylvia Story, left; Josie Collins, new Lady Inniskerr, right. Ad. below, the Marchioness of Headfort, former Gaiety star.

The divorce of the popular Lord and Lady Paget, one of England's many romantic couples of the stage and peerage, has brought up the question as to whether there is likely to be a success in matrimonial adventures of actresses who marry into the peerage. There are a goodly number of couples who are reported as happily married. Among the most prominent are the Headforts and the Inniskerrs. The Marchioness of Headfort was Rosie Booth, a former Gaiety star. She used her talents and her voice during the war to entertain convalescent British soldiers.

Then there was the successful matrimonial career of Sylvia Story, who is now the widow of Lord Poulett.

Lady Inniskerr was Josie Collins, who was famous on the musical stage and in the movies. Her recent marriage to Lord Robert Inniskerr, former British attaché and social favorite in New York, is said to be an exceedingly happy match.

WITH THE WOMEN OF TODAY

According to Miss Martha O. Sears, who chairs the business and professional women's council, ignorance of simple banking procedure deters many women from having bank accounts. To meet this condition a New York bank has organized a department specially for the business woman and Miss Sears has been made head of the department. The variety of personal services rendered is so varied and so extensive that it is a puzzle and an inexperienced girl and woman since the opening of the department shows a definite need for such banking service for women.

Miss Sears is called upon daily to solve for perplexed feminine customers their problems of foreign exchange of bonds cutting coupons, trustworthy investments, systematic savings and other economic matters in which they have had insufficient experience. Miss Sears herself has had years of training in financial circles. In her opinion, timidity in revealing to men bankers their lack of business training, as well as frequent failure of business men to realize the complexities of a financial problem from a woman's point of view, are the main reasons for the large number of women who own no bank account even after a long period of wage earning.

Through the service of her department Miss Sears has set hundreds of women on the road to business self-reliance and financial security.

The Letters of Tessie and Joe

DEAR TESSIE:

In answer to your idea of spending good money for a phonograph to get on the baby's ear for music, would say that phonographs are great institutions and the only thing I've got against them is that I don't like them. Of course you might say when you get tired of hearing them you can turn them off, but does that apply when you're out calling and your host insists on showing you a good time by unleashing the canned jazz? Answer, it does not. It would be just as practical to think of lying a sofa cushion over your hostess' mouth when she starts to unwind her favorite and longest story that you've ever heard her tell about 50 times.

So lay off the phonograph idea, although I see they've got out a new attachment now that winds them by electricity. All you have to do is press a button and feel like the conquest of mind over matter. So at that rate pretty soon they might make the world safe for guests by bringing out an attachment that will make them soundless.

Some unfortunate crime waver snatched my sample case in the train yesterday. By the weight of it he must have thought it was gold nuggets, and when he found he had staggered home with a dozen cans of Daisy Canned Soups he must have felt simply awful. Now that I want to knock D. C. Soups and thus make it unanimous, but they're the last things in the world I'd want to steal, though I might take a limited number of cans as a gift if I was stranded on a desert island. Nobody ever said I wasn't broad minded.

The strange part about it was that I got more orders without my samples than I ever got with them, which may have been only a coincidence. On the other hand may have a deep significance. Love to you and the little son and heir, principally son.

JOE.

Shops Herald Approach of Cupid's Day

Pictures of hearts and flowers, blue skies and little birds piping a love tune, appearing in the store windows herald the approach of youth's festival—Valentine's day.

Sly cupids with arrows poised, nestle in lacy booklets serving as a cover for some little verse bursting with love. Is it any wonder the heart beats young when gazing upon these ardent missives?

As is true with all holidays or festivals it is the children who are most enthusiastic. For days under the guidance of their teachers they have been fashioning little valentines. Even though the heart may be shaped like most anything but a heart, and the word "valentine" which always proves too long to print, may be somewhat askew, they receive the proper welcome from the mother to whom they will be presented.

Prohibition Has Put Shoes on Many Children in Janesville, Says Report

Hearty endorsement of amendments for putting teeth into the Mulberger prohibition bill which will be considered at the present session of the legislature was given by the Janesville Missionary association at the monthly meeting this morning at the Y. M. C. A.

A resolution to that effect will be sent Assemblyman A. E. Matson and Senator Ridgway by Rev. Frank Scribner, secretary of the association.

More children in Janesville are wearing shoes now than ever before, according to a report presented by T. C. Thorson. The report detailed many results of the prohibition law in Janesville as seen by him. It follows:

Rev. Mr. Thorson's Report
What difference, if any, has prohibition made in Janesville? I have received answers to that question from merchants, bankers, teachers, police officers, employers of labor, and public officials in various capacities in Janesville. Sometimes the answer came quickly in glad response, sometimes reluctantly as with a touch of sad reluctance.

History says that long after Nero's death many people lived in fear of his return to visit vengeance upon them. I found in similar state of mind among some of the people of Janesville with reference to the passing of John Barleycorn. For it is certain but for the fear that the children had little or no money for school purposes, for the obvious reason that the father or both parents spent that money for drink, today have ample means to buy the necessary school supplies.

Under the last point, I was told of instances where the fathers who had found the saloon and comrades in drink more desirable than home and family, now stay home evenings, and have even with the teachers' aid purchased child literature to read to the children.

For several reasons the report is necessarily circumstantial in its scope. Statistics were not at hand to any great extent; evidence on the salutory effects of prohibition were often given with great reservation. In the report I have preserved the arguments in their original phrasing as near as possible without taking down the conversations verbatim.

One of the greatest tributes to prohibition is the large number of converts it has made from the ranks of those who were once its most bitter enemies.

Plan Father-Son Meet.
A union banquet for "Father and Son" week, which has been observed annually in Janesville, for several years was decided upon by the association to be held under the direction of the Y. M. C. A. with the support of the churches. Banquets in the churches during this week will be left to the discretion of the churches.

Motion to have Rev. Mr. Gordon, pastor of the Baptist church, hold a conference of a week of union meetings at the Congregational church the second week before Lent was passed. Rev. H. G. Pierson and Rev. Frank Scribner were appointed as a committee to make arrangements.

Meeting in Lent.
The plan is a week of cottage meetings the third week before Easter; the second week union meetings at the Congregational church with the co-operation of the ministers of the various churches the week before Easter. The meetings will be held in each church.

Rev. J. Hart Truesdale who was to give a paper on Janesville motion picture to identify some of their silverware that was stolen last fall from their cottage at Delavan lake and is being recovered by Marshall George Fryer—Miss Gladys Wilkins, Esloil, came Friday to visit relatives till Sunday—J. A. Mordimer of Whitewater was a business visitor in town Friday. The Misses Emma Cockerill and Marion Milmine of the Whitewater normal, came home Friday for an over Sunday visit at their homes. Dr. Fred Sturland of Janesville was here Friday to see Charles Wolcott, Sr. who fell last Sunday and fractured his hip. Cyril Rector, Delavan, came Friday evening to attend the dance and visit with friends for a few days. Dr. Herman Kock, Whitehall, came the last of the week to join his wife in a visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Chester—G. C. Bjelland and daughter were Janesville visitors Friday. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Shaver and J. O. Robb returned Friday evening from Milwaukee where they have been attending a Hardware convention.

Difference to Employer
What difference has prohibition made in the police records? I asked one of the officers. "This is what he answered: 'Before the sale of liquor was prohibited, with few exceptions, the poor farm? I asked the superintendent every week to quell drunken brawls in the homes, or to collar some drunk abusing his wife on the street. But that," said he, "is now a thing of the past." Quite as remarkable is the reduction in the number of arrests from 1872 to 1920. In 1920 it is necessary to be in mind with the increased number of arrests the increase of population, the large labor turnover in the same period, and that Janesville was for a while the only oasis in a large dry area."

In the municipal court the number charged with drunkenness brought before Judge Stanfield has fallen off 75 per cent.

In the Home
There is more happiness than formerly in many homes in Janesville as the direct result of prohibition is the joint statement of the city and school nurses. Fathers, brutalized by drink, came home cursing, subjecting wife and children to abuse and blows, and not infrequently driving them out of the house. At times it was a mother ill in bed, who in tears and anguish of heart, confided her story of neglect and abuse, because her husband had fallen a victim to strong drink. And where the income flowed down the father's throat instead of into the family coffers, naturally superior in misery followed. But we are told few such sad stories now, observed the nurses.

The associated charities of the city bear witness to the same general change as a result of prohibition. The American saloon. Where in former years at Christmas time there were wont to be about 50 families in need, there were only 10 this last Christmas. To form a just estimate what that means one must remember that the increase in population and also that the period of industrial depression had set in before the holiday days.

I called on a number of the principals of our graded schools and asked them if prohibition had made any difference in the school life of the children. I hasten to add that in each case the information was based on observation covering a period of years and in the same school. Looking over my notes I find that all the principals agree that in homes where one or both parents were addicted to drink the abolition of the sale of liquor brought out the following results:

1. The children show a better school spirit.
2. The children are better shod and clothed.
3. The children have more money.
4. The parents show a keener interest in the children.

In explanation of the first point it was brought out that under the licensed saloon children often came to school in noticeably depressed spirits. Sometimes the children would volunteer the information, or it would come upon solicitation, that the depressed state of mind was due to violence in the home. Where the father spent his earnings for drink the mother would of necessity be forced to work, and in consequence the children suffered neglect. The abolition of the liquor traffic has in such instances had a marked effect upon the children in school.

Under the second point it was stated that the first sign of destitution in the home was lack of comfortable shoes. And where formerly children of inebriate parents were so destitute of shoes and clothes that it was necessary to appeal for outside help in their behalf, that condition has passed with its principal cause, the legalized saloon.

Shoes for Children Now
Upon the third point it was observed that the children who formerly had little or no money for school purposes, for the obvious reason that the father or both parents spent that money for drink, today have ample means to buy the necessary school supplies.

Under the last point, I was told of instances where the fathers who had found the saloon and comrades in drink more desirable than home and family, now stay home evenings, and have even with the teachers' aid purchased child literature to read to the children.

Mrs. Peete Found Guilty

Mrs. C. Peete and her wife, Louise, photographed between sessions of trial.

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 7.—Mrs. Louise L. Peete, 27, charged with the murder of Jacob C. Denton, wealthy mine promoter, was found guilty Saturday night and sentenced to life imprisonment.

Mrs. Peete displayed no emotion when she heard the verdict. Her husband, R. C. Peete, embraced her with tears coursing down his cheeks. He had been with her throughout the trial.

Mrs. Peete was a former housekeeper for Denton. She was arrested shortly after the decomposed body of Denton was discovered buried in the cellar of his home. Examination disclosed he had been shot through the neck. As the verdict was read, Peete's thin figure slumped and he emitted a cultural, heart rending groan. He wept like a child as he hugged the mother of his four-year-old daughter.

Mrs. Peete gave a sup-b demonstration of the police which had sustained her throughout the trial. She forced a faint smile and patted the back of her husband as he embraced her, his face convulsed in emotion and tears streaming from his eyes. Escorted back to the county jail, Mrs. Peete learned for the first time upon the frail arms of her husband.

TO THE PUBLIC:

The following very timely statement is published in the interest of retail trade by J. M. Bostwick & Sons through the courtesy of W. & J. Sloane, New York City, the largest jobbers of carpets, rugs and linoleums in the world.

Every person is deeply interested in knowing the facts as they are and we consider a statement coming from so large and reliable a concern as W. & J. Sloane to be such as to reflect the true state of affairs as nearly as possible.

TIME TO BUY!

THE time has come to urge upon consumers a return to the kind of discriminating buying necessary to sustain industry and encourage production.

A few months ago the public registered its protest against high prices by refusing to buy. No one can say that protest was not effective.

A few retailers have failed to give purchasers the benefit of reductions made possible by the cut in wholesale prices. But everybody knows that in many directions retail as well as wholesale prices have come down and that many articles can be bought now for much less than at the time when a sorely tired public practically ceased buying.

In their own interest, consumers cannot afford to carry the "Don't-buy" policy too far.

In the long run, closed mills and stagnant demand cannot make for progressive decreasing prices.

Even on a falling market there comes a moment when the public should begin to buy, steadily, in order to stabilize prices at the lower levels and prevent a new upward movement due to diminished production. That moment has now come.

Consumers should buy, and buy freely, of retail dealers who have consistently reduced prices. Such buying will put strong economic pressure on dealers who have so far failed to reflect wholesale price-cuts. It will also assure producers of the willingness of the public to buy at reasonable prices.

Neither production nor prosperity can stand an indefinite period of sub-normal buying or sub-normal circulation of money.

IT IS TIME TO BUY
